because it takes in all the thousand dollars' worth of stocks that your eyes can behold for semi-annual disposition. Same price—any price goes to-day. The novel introduction of marking this store full of goods for THIS SPECIAL REMNANT SALE was to withdraw all and every limitation of price and permit each head of department to price them as they pleased, only so that THEY WOULD BE SOLD.

17 Wrought-Iron Kitch= on the impeachment trial of Judge Chase.

The speaker gave a clear view of the first pressive scene in the hall of trial. This hall was destroyed by the British when they burned Washington in 1814. He gave, in a few crisp sentences, pictures of the association and their families and friends at the Casino.

To a few of the members of the association and their families and friends at the Casino.

To a few of the members of the association and their phoid-pneumonia. She was 32 years of age. She is survived by a husband, two aron Burr, the presiding officer; of John arondoph, of Roanoke, the principal fig-re among the managers; of Luther Martin, the Federalist buildog, chief counsel

> The three chief articles, said the speaker, of impeachment were the trial of John members of meeting the guests of the as-Fries, for treason; the trial of Callendar, sociation. From there the association he printer, in Virginia, for seditious libel, and the delivery of a political oration in an address to the grand jury. The first ercises. nvolved the question, now well settled, involved the question, now well settled, whether a lawyer can argue against the instructions of the court; the second was loving a trial under the famous sedition law, looked upon by the bar of Virginia as monstrously unsuccessful. In neither case was there a dispute as to the facts. The Hope of the Future—by Senator John W. Daniel and Index Hope, "The third charge broke down in the proof. After noting the fature of the impeachment, the speaker proceeded to show why the impeachment had been undertaken. People and the Maintenance of Civil and the impeachment had been undertaken.
> That it was a political prosecution from beginning to end caunot, he said, be denied. Judga Chase had marked himself for such an attack. An ardent Federal for such an attack.

tion of the sedition law, but brought the powerful weight of his character and legal attainments to its enforcement. It was this law and the alien law that were regarded of all others, as the most arbitrary of the Francisco of the Country for the Francisco of the Francisco of the Country for the Francisco of the Country for the Country for the Francisco of the Country for th regarded, of all others, as the most arbi-trary of the Federalist measure. They had called out the famous Kentucky Heaven to Man"—by Hon. Theodore S. resolutions, and the Virginia Assembly declared them unconstitutional.

In response to loud calls, Hon. John J. ANOTHER REASON.

Again, Judge Chase was of that charac-ter of judge which is to a lawyer the most exasperating-combative, alert, sarcastic, able. Another reason why the impeachment of Judge Chase was undertaken was that there was about this time what we may call an epidemic impeachments; and again, to remode Chase would have given the portunity to place some one else in his place. All these reasons conspired, and portunity to place some conspired, and even the fact of his having been one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence could not shield him, when he stood in the path of those who sought public power or place. The failure of the impeachment was attributed to several causes. The prosecution was conthe impeachment was attributed to several causes. The prosecution was conducted with a degree of heat in no way warranted by the charges; the theory of the impeachment broke down from the very beginning. The Constitution declared that judges should hold office during good behavior, and must be removed by impeachment for treason, bethery, or other high crimes or mismoved by impeachment for treason, bribery, or other high crimes or misdemeanors. "But," said the speaker. "I am constrained to believe the controlling reason for the acquittal of Judge Chase was something more Yar-reaching. Aside from any recoil from the ungenerous heat of the prosecution, aside from any fixed outplot as to the exact limit of proceedof the prosecution, aside from any fixed opinion as to the exact limit of proceeding upon impeachment, there was the feeling that Judge Chase, whatever might be his faults, was not deserving of this stigma upon his life. We are wont to pride ourselves upon the energy and force of our national character. We are wont to smile at the gravity with which wont to smile at the gravity with why wont to smile at the gravity with which the Old World regards the unsuspecifing and humerous view we take of matters of most serious concern. But when it comes to a question of doing full justice to the individual, of giving the most ample protection to the one who seems to stand alone; of shielding weakness against power; of exacting fair play in every contest in life, then the American community puts its place on a high plane.

"The establishment of the judicial independence in this trial was followed by the establishment of the executive independence in the Johnson trial."

The speaker showed by very strong arguments that the fear of Mr. Jefferson that the judicial department would gradually absorb all the other departments was wholly groundless, because Congress is absolutely the power to prescribe its power, and has not hesitated to use this

"There is." he said, "no power in the State so dependent upon the people as the judiciary. Strip it of their confidence and take away their faith in it, and it is as a voice crying in the wilderness.

"This famous trial proved the wisdom of confiding in the Senate the power to try impeachments. The Senate may be called the rich man's club, but," said the speaker, "because several States have failed to elect, it is argued that there should be a direct vote for senators by the people. The moment the plan of the Constitution providing one method of selecting the House of Representatives, another the Senate, and a third the President is broken, no man can foresee the changes that will occur

A DENIAL In conclusion, the speaker depled the oft-repeated statement that the great rivals in the beginning of our government were Hamilton and Jefferson. "The true rivals," he said, "were both of them pro-ducts of Virginia soil-Thomas Jefferson and John Marshall—the one President and the other Chief Justice. The dominant impulse of the one was the freedom of the individual; the controlling motive of the other was the order of society. The one feared anything which seemed to rein dealing with matters of local concern.

The other was determined that the central government should have force chough to at once protect its own life and enforce its lawful authority. "These two men were like intellectual athletes, standing eye to eye, face to face, foot to foot. Out of the life-wrestle of the principles illustrated by each has come our inheritance. If this nation is to last it must be because we have learn-ed that individual liberty and social order are the twin pillars in the temple of popular government."

SOCIAL FEATURES. Immediately after the delivery of the annual address, an informal luncheon was given to the association by Mr. and was not the least attractive one. The annual banquet was preceded to-night by for the defence, and then drew in a rapid an informal meeting of the banqueters but clear manner a pen picture of Judge at 7.30 o'clock in the pool-room of the Homestead, where light refreshments were served and opportunity given to the adjourned to the dining-room to enjoy another one of its delightful closing ex-

DINWIDDIE,

Narrow Escape in a Bunaway-Political Points. DINWIDDIE COURTHOUSE, VA., Au gust 2.-(Special.)-The annual examination for white teachers of the public schools commenced Tuesday, Dr. E. C. Powell, superintendent, conducting the examination. Mr. John Boisseau, son of Mr. J. W. Boisseau, had a very narrow escape from horsean, and a very narrow casape trom serious injury Tuesday by a runnway horse hitched to a wagon. The young man was on his way to Church Road, and as he was getting into the wagon at this place the horse became frightened and dashed away at a Nancy-Hanks speed. Young Bolsseau was dragged for a few yards, but only received slight bruises on the arm and leg. The wagon was considerably broken up. The time for holding the Democratic convention for the nomination of a candidate to represent this county in the House has not yet been settled upon. From information that your correspondent has gathered from many persons, it is the desire that the people be given time to consider this matter and to send a representative that will vote on all questions as a majority of the Democrats of this old county wish.
